| Friday, Dec. 28 | 6 pm potluck, 7 pm presentation Alaska Peace Center potluck and presentation of the San Francisco to Moscow Walk for Peace In 1960 Suzanne Rich Osborn joined a group walking from San Francisco to Moscow to promote peace between the United States and the USSR. “We wanted to see a world without war. We were talking about making a unilateral peace and for each government to stop militarism.” The walk was organized by the Committee for Nonviolent Action. The small group of people walked across the United States to New York, caught a flight to London, wound up on a boat to Belgium, and walked from there to Moscow. They were treated quite well in Russia and passed out thousands and thousands of leaflets along the way, as well as picketing at military bases they passed by. Potluck at 6:00, Program and discussion begins at 7:00. Join advocates for peace, justice, and sustainability, with good food, camaraderie, enlightenment, and discussion.

Good News category:

from Pace e Bene: “The Power of Protest - These days the question is being asked more and more, "do protests make a difference". A new study by researchers at Stanford and the University of Pennsylvania took that question seriously and found that, in fact, protests had a considerable impact on various facets of politics & voting behavior. The crucial detail was that a nonviolent protest held a much more powerful and positive impact on the population. [Read more here.]

We’re excited to see more research being done that continues to show the power of nonviolence, just as the work of Erica Chenoweth* has been doing…”

*“This research speaks to the very pervasive Myth that nonviolent resistance is impossible against repressive opponents...... nonviolent resistance is probably the best antidote to repression and the best chance against repression... Myth that it can’t work in authoritarian regimes... The hx of the US revolution is totally wrong, because the decades before the shots at Concord were decades of mass civil disobedience by colonists and settlers... were key examples of... vicil disobedience... they developed their own alternative institutions and the Declaration of Independence was the punctuation mark…”

“Victory on Protections for Native Women and Girls
FCNL: On Dec. 7, the Senate passed Savanna’s Act! The bill would expand tribal access to federal crime databases and calls for improved response and coordination from law enforcement agencies responding to missing and murdered Native Americans. FCNL’s Native American Legislative Advocate, Lacina Tangnaqudo Onco, has worked hard to advance this bill. You can read our recent testimony, which Sen. Heidi Heitkamp (ND) submitted into the Congressional Record. The bill now awaits action in the House.

In fact Brown University in Rhode Island has done the definitive study on just this point and they have found that conversion to building sustainable technology creates more jobs. Justice from us@sumofus.org: “After the FCC gutted net neutrality—the basic principle that all information on the Internet be treated equally—together we convinced a divided Senate to overturn the FCC’s disastrous decision.

All that’s left to save the internet is a simple majority in the House. But the clock is ticking: the deadline to pass a Congressional Review Act to reverse the FCC’s decision is December 10.
We need to rally quickly to take back control of the Internet from Big Cable. Will you add your name to the thousands of people who’ve called on the House to stand up for a free and equal Internet?

from American Civil Liberties Union: “FROM THE FRONT LINES

from Northern Alaska Environmental Center: “The Beaufort Sea Lease Sale EIS scoping period is open until Dec 17. The Utqiagvik, Nuiqsut and Kaktovik public hearings were cancelled this week, due to the earthquake in Anchorage... The Beaufort is currently off limits for drilling, and in court last month, Earthjustice argued that Trump's attempts to undo Obama-era withdrawals from the leasing area is illegal. Meanwhile, sea ice is unreliable, freezing later and receding earlier in the season, and the recently approved Liberty Project, the first Arctic offshore from Friends Committee on National Legislation: “Final Barrier on Criminal Justice Reform

The FIRST STEP Act (S.3649), a modest but comprehensive bipartisan proposal with overwhelming support, could potentially help thousands of people, improve public safety, and make prisons more effective. It has the votes to pass in the Senate, but is being held by Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell (KY).”

“A Final Push This Year for Yemen - The Senate could vote next week on S.J. Res 54, which would end U.S. military involvement in the war in Yemen, and reduce our involvement in the world’s worst humanitarian crisis. The bill passed a procedural vote last week by a large majority, but your senators need to hear from you now.” [Sens. Sullivan & Murkowski voted to kill this bill.]

“Tear gas has been outlawed as a method of warfare by almost every country in the world. However, American law enforcement continues to use it on our own citizens as well as on unarmed asylum-seekers at the border. “Youth of color from all across the country are saying ENOUGH. School safety is about their lives; about their daily experiences. They are calling for divestment from school policing, increased funding for more guidance counselors, mental health supports and restorative justice, as well as increased pay for their teachers, among drilling in federal waters, has had to change plans due to climate change.

“While the legality of this leasing in the Beaufort Sea remains under consideration, you may submit comments online. Possible talking points include:

- Climate change. Recent climate reports make it increasingly clear that more fossil fuel development, especially in the Arctic, which is experiencing warming at twice the rate of the rest of the planet, is not the way forward.

- Human rights. Indigenous people in the Arctic depend on healthy marine environments for food, community stability, and cultural health. Access to subsistence foods is a human right, and even if drilling occurs without incident, it would exacerbate the environmental changes already underway. A spill in Arctic waters would have major impacts on the health of wildlife and people who depend on them, and would be extremely difficult to clean up.

- Economy. Continued dependence on oil is not the way forward for Alaska. We must join other Arctic nations in developing economic opportunities that contribute to a just transition off fossil fuels.

- Impacts to wildlife. Many species are already strained by the warming climate and loss of sea ice. Large portions of the Beaufort Sea have already been designated critical polar bear habitat, and industrial noise from drilling has detrimental effects on the movements and behaviors of marine species.

“Scoping for the re-do of the NPR-A Integrated Activity Plan (National Petroleum Reserve-Alaska IAP) and Environmental Impact Statement is also open now (until Jan 7). Public meetings scheduled for this week in North Slope communities were cancelled because of the earthquake. Meetings are still tentatively scheduled for next week, including in Fairbanks on the 13th. Efforts for expanded drilling in the NPR-A, in Alaska’s Western Arctic, is also under legal consideration, and we, along with other plaintiffs in Northern Alaska Environmental Center vs. U.S. Department of the Interior, are awaiting a court

Or would you turn the other cheek?’ We hear those words and we think of the children of Yemen cryin’ and dyin’... cancel their December 13 - 14 concert in Saudi Arabia! ...Send a message asking the Black Eyed Peas to practice what they preach and steer clear of the murderous Saudi regime.”
