<td>‘DEADLINE EXTENDED: December 13: Comment on transfer of BP assets to Hilcorp. [Northern Alaska Environmental Center] urge you to submit comments, contact your representatives, and write letters to the editor asking ... to consider what this major change would mean for our state's economy, health, and climate future. Hilcorp's record of environmental damage, worker safety violations, and secretive business practices should raise red flags for all of us. Read FCAC's Renewable Energy campaigner Phil Wight's letter to the editor here. Dermot Cole wrote a followup here. ADN reported on the federal aspects of the trade. AKPIRG shares more information here. Phil Wight's powerful response to John Shively, former commissioner of the Department of Natural Resources and current chairman of the Pebble Mine project, asserting why it is so important to have a public charter with Hilcorp.</td>

‘Following spill, American Petroleum Institute issues demand to White House to gut environmental review process - They're demanding a total gut job on the National Environmental Policy Act — a bedrock environmental law that requires the federal government to study the environmental impacts of projects and consider public input before they can proceed. This is just weeks after the Keystone Pipeline burst in North Dakota, spilling more than 383,000 gallons of oil into nearby wetlands. ” from LCV (League of Conservation Voters)

Regenerative Farms - “If you’d like to support your local organic and regenerative farmers more, but just don’t have the time to do the research to determine which ones are farming in line with your values, you’re in luck. Our team spent countless hours, days, weeks and months doing the research for you. Check out the map! Want to help us make the map better? If we’ve missed a regenerative farm in your area, please let us know by filling out this form. Not sure if your local farm is regenerative? Check out the definition here. Still not sure? Call us: 952-777-3239.” from Organic Consumers Association (The only Interior Alaska Regenerative Farm listed is Calypso Farm.)

from Alaska Public Media 11-27-19: “What’s it like to find a hidden camera in your room? A Dillingham reporter found out.” and... Alaska Hire law declared unconstitutional.
