<td>Breaking News on NDAA: Urgent Action Needed - The final 2020 National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) negotiation has ended and FCNL has learned that the final bill fails to reassert congressional war authority and end endless wars. This NDAA won’t end U.S. support for the Saudi-UAE led war in Yemen, it won’t prevent an unauthorized war against Iran, and it won’t repeal the 2002 Iraq war authorization. Your voice is needed. Call your representative and urge them to vote &quot;no&quot; when the NDAA comes to the floor this week!</td>

-- “Are you concerned about the preparation for and use of military being promoted in and from Alaska as a first rather than a last resort when conflicts arise, and of the blurring between prevention and provocation of conflict?

Alaska Senators Murkowski and Sullivan recently introduced a bill to create a new “Ted Stevens Arctic Security Studies Center,” within the Department of Defense. Its primary goals “would be to find solutions for the greatest security challenges of the Circumpolar Arctic region while promoting greater engagement to addressing the challenges that lay ahead,” per Murkowski’s website.

I suggest that a Security Studies Center should instead be situated within the University of Alaska system or the U.S. Institute of Peace (USIP), “a national, nonpartisan, independent institute, founded by Congress and dedicated to the proposition that a world without violent conflict is possible, practical, and essential for U.S. and global security. In conflict zones abroad, the Institute works with local partners to prevent, mitigate, and resolve violent conflict.”

The USIP’s broader vision for solutions and alternative approaches to resolving conflict is better suited to an Arctic Security Studies Center than the Department of Defense. The U.S. Institute of Peace website https://www.usip.org/ lists examples of how it advances peace and national security, such as, “facilitates reconciliation dialogues to heal the deep divides left by ISIS’s occupation [in Iraq]. These dialogues lead to tangible healing, including 6 accords that have permitted the return of more than 600,000 displaced Iraqis.”

"Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies in the final sense a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed." Dwight D. Eisenhower

The Department of Defense (DoD), on the other hand, “provides the military forces needed to deter war and ensure our nation’s security.”

This is a much more limited scope and includes various inherent problems. These problems include risking the lives and emotional well-being of its 1.3 million active-duty service members, as well as seriously impacting their family members, communities, and the foreign communities where many of them are stationed.

Whereas USIP requested $38 million for 2019, the 2020 Senate Defense Appropriations bill provides $750 Billion for failed-audit, untraceable military funding, and does not include the hundreds of $Billions of military-related and non-DoD military spending. Giving more to the Department of Defense’s outsized budget would likely be further fuel to the military-industrial complex which perpetuates ever-more-deadly arms and pollution instead of alternative, healthier, resolutions to conflict.

As the adage says, “When your only tool is a hammer, every problem looks like a nail.”

The U.S. Institute for Peace has more diverse tools in its toolbox and is able to analyze world events, societies, individuals, and their interactions with a much wider range of vision than the limited paradigm through which the Department of Defense sees the world.

I urge Senators Murkowski and Sullivan to change their bill to situate their proposed Ted Stevens Arctic Security Studies Center within the University of Alaska and/or the U.S. Institute for Peace, and to provide full funding as a broad-based program not limited to military solutions.

Please let our Senators know you agree. Call them via the Capitol switchboard, 1-202-224-3121; or you can visit their local offices, fax or email them:

Audio & Songs broadcast with this week’s Community News and Opportunities:

Defense Secretary Mark Esper declared that President Donald Trump ordered him to stop a disciplinary review of a Navy SEAL accused of battlefield misconduct, an intervention that raised questions about America’s commitment to international standards for battlefield ethics.

Gallagher was acquitted of murder in the stabbing death of an Islamic State militant captive but convicted by a military jury of posing with the corpse while in Iraq in 2017. Esper initially favored allowing the Navy to proceed with a peer-review board which could have resulted in Gallagher losing his SEAL status, but he said he was obliged to follow Trump’s order.

“I can control what I can control,” Esper told reporters when asked whether Trump sent the right message to U.S. troops by intervening to stop the Gallagher review. “The president is the commander in chief. He has every right, authority and privilege to do what he wants to do.”
According to Wikipedia:

On June 20, 2019, during Gallagher's trial, one of the platoon medics from Gallagher's team testifying as a prosecution witness said that although Gallagher did stab the ISIS fighter, he did not actually kill him. The medic, Special Operator First Class Corey Scott who testified under an immunity agreement, testified that he himself had killed the wounded prisoner by covering his breathing tube and asphyxiating him. Prosecutors were taken by surprise, since the medic had never given this version of events to them or Navy investigators. This account was also contrary to the statements of at least seven other SEALs as well as Scott's previous statements. Because of the immunity agreement Scott cannot be prosecuted even for admitting publicly that he killed the man, though he could be prosecuted for perjury if the account is proven false.

I have no way of verifying Special Operator First Class Corey Scott’s surprise testimony. Any conjecture on my part as to the veracity of his confession or the probable outcome of the slated peer review would be moot. It is somewhat telling, however, that he did confirm that Gallagher had stabbed the injured POW in the neck.

Many people, including some retired military leaders, have raised concerns over the power of the President to reverse decisions made within the authority of the Universal Code of Military Justice. To some degree I share those concerns. But, consider this, the case was considered to be "difficult" due to the Navy’s slow response to the reports of misconduct. No formal investigation began for nearly a year after the reports were made and by then much of the physical evidence, such as the bodies of those alleged to be killed by Gallagher, were not recoverable.

This is not atypical. Those inclined to commit murder will do so especially if trained to do so and the murder is committed against someone fitting the mythical construct of enemy, terrorist, savage, etc. It makes little difference if the so-called enemy is murdered defending his own turf against the invading murderer. Some get a slap on the hand, like Gallagher possibly losing his Navy Seal status. Many get ribbons of honor and badges of courage.

The whole business first became clear to me during my Basic Training at Fort Jackson, South Carolina in 1971. My company had just finished our required class, instructed by representatives from the International Red Cross, on International Humanitarian Law. While standing in formation, after being instructed that it was our duty to refuse to carry out orders to commit war crimes, our drill sergeants gave us the straight skinny, “Soldiers, all that stuff you just learned in class, about not following orders to commit war crimes? Forget it. That ain't the way it works.” War, after all, is a racket.

“Some of those that work forces, are the same that burn crosses.” Next Rage Against The Machine sings Killing In The Name Of.
