Two months have gone by since the Secretary General of the United Nations proposed an absolutely necessary global ceasefire. The U.S. government has blocked a vote on the ceasefire in the UN Security Council. The U.S. government during these past two months has led the world in:

- military spending
- weapons manufacture
- foreign weapons sales
- bombs dropped
- imposition of brutal sanctions
- threats of new wars
- attempted coups
- war rehearsals
- destruction of key disarmament treaties
- COVID-19 cases
- COVID-19 deaths
- vetoes and effective veto threats at the United Nations

The world cannot continue to allow the U.S. government to hold it back. A government misrepresenting 4 percent of humanity has no business controlling global policies. The cause of democratizing the United Nations might be aided by the governments of the world working around the UN when necessary. Right now it is necessary. The world’s government are perfectly capable of agreeing to a Global Ceasefire, signed and ratified by every nation but the United States, and of prosecuting U.S. violations of that law under universal jurisdiction. This would, after all, amount merely to restating the existence of the Kellogg-Briand Pact and/or the United Nations Charter, and committing to upholding one or both of those laws.

The U.S. government is committed to opposing the United Nations, the World Health Organization, and global cooperation. It wants wars to continue for the sake of profits, but claims the justification of “fighting terrorism,” despite the fact that terrorism predictably increased from 2001 through 2014, principally as a predictable result of the war on terrorism, which itself has been indistinguishable from terrorism. The world has no excuse for tolerating this madness.

More information on the global ceasefire can be found here. 20,000 people have signed in support of it here. Add your name!

audio & music played with this week's broadcast:

-- "Hello this is The Asymmetric Moose, Rob Mulford with picks of the week of May 31, 2020.

It appears as if we are headed into a long hot summer, one not seen in this country in 53 years. I’m sure that most of you have seen and heard the reports of the death of George Floyd; a black Minnesotan murdered by Minneapolis Police this past Monday, May 25th. I was 14 in 1967, when cities across the country burst into flames, fuelled by racial injustice, disparities in wealth and opportunity, police brutality, and the inevitable conflicts that naturally arise out of that environment. White privilege is an ingrained social construct that is difficult to shed. Fifty-three years on most whites still appear clueless to its intrinsic wrongfulness. The cause of the current conflagration should be of little mystery.

I have chosen the following recordings to elucidate that social construct and its destructive consistency. May we not go another 53 years in ignorance.

First the ever-prolific creator of spirited tunes of mutual aid social / earth consciousness and revolution, David Rovics sings “As I Watched Minneapolis Burn”

In the next tune Marvin Gaye sings of a black man returning from fighting in Vietnam to that cultural construct mentioned earlier, “What’s Happening Brother”

Pussy Riot dedicated their first song in English to Eric Garner, a black man in New York City who, six years ago, suffered the same fate as George Floyd. The Band stated “This song is for Eric and for all those from Russia to America and around the globe who suffer from state terror - killed, choked, perished because of war and state sponsored violence of all kinds - for political prisoners and those on the streets fighting for change. We stand in solidarity.” The tune is “I Can’t Breathe”

See if you can detect a little in the way of continuity of thought between the following recordings, if indeed any thought was given to the statements outside of hate and thuggishness. The recording starts with President Trump and finishes with 1968 third party Presidential candidate Governor Gorge Corley Wallace.

Next Daye Jack and Killer Mike sing about some sad facts of life that many people of color find themselves having to teach their children. Hands Up

Changing the subject and maybe adding a little levity the nest tune is by Peter Paul and Mary from their album In These Times, Union Medley"
