More Election-Related information:
"The deadline for requesting an absentee ballot by mail has passed. There are still the following voting options available for the November 3, 2020, General Election.
1. Vote early or absentee in-person at one of the over 150 locations statewide. Find your nearest location here: https://www.elections.alaska.gov/Core/avolocationsg.php

2. Apply to receive a ballot by electronic transmission – either online delivery or by fax. An online application is available here: https://absenteeballotapplication.alaska.gov/ or you can use a paper application. The deadline to apply is Monday, Nov 2... 5pm Alaska Time. General Election is Tuesday, November 3, 2020. On Election Day, polling places will be open from 7:00am to 8:00pm. Locate your polling place here: https://www.elections.alaska.gov/Core/listofpollingplacelocations.php or https://myvoterinformation.alaska.gov/ or call 1-888-383-8683...

If you applied for a ballot, you can check the status at: https://myvoterinformation.alaska.gov/" from votesafe907 (alaska.gov)

"Voters will be notified if their absentee ballot was rejected within 60 days of the certification of elections results. Since the target for certifying the results is Nov. 25, this will be in late January.

"What’s the deadline for mailing an absentee ballot? The envelope must be postmarked by Election Day, Nov. 3. Voters can ask at their post office for their envelopes to be postmarked in person. If they don’t do this, the U.S. Postal Service sends mail across Alaska to Anchorage to be postmarked. So on Election Day, or the day before it, voters should ask a postal clerk to postmark the envelope. " from Alaska Public Media 10/22/20

"Help Support a Free and Fair Election - The Alaska Public Interest Research Group & Alaskans for Better Elections are committed to ensuring a fair and free election. With a record number of absentee ballots cast amidst a pandemic, this year's election looks different. The Division of Elections has taken steps to ensure that everyone's vote is still counted, and we want to help make sure that is true at the polls and behind the scenes.

"That's why we're asking you to help step up and protect our democracy--whether you can take a day or more, we need you! We will provide training and compensation, as available. Thank you for your help bringing citizen oversight to this critical process in this pivotal moment.

covid-19-resources-updates/housing-covid-19 Here is a summary of what CDC declaration contains:

- CDC is issuing eviction moratorium to protect public health
- Authority cited: “Under 42 CFR 70.2”
- Applies wherever there is not a more protective state moratorium in effect;
- Applies to all tenants who present a signed declaration to their LLs;
- The declaration requires the tenant to state:
  iv. income is less than $99,000, did not have to pay income tax in 2019, or received a stimulus check;
  (ii) tenant unable to pay rent due to income loss or extraordinary out-of-pocket medical expenses;
  (iii) tenant would become homeless or need to double-up if evicted;
  (iv) tenant will still make partial payments (“using best efforts to make timely partial payments that are as close to the full payment as the individual’s circumstances may permit, taking into account other non-disccretionary expenses);
- Lasts through December 31
- Tenants can still be evicted for “reasons other than nonpayment of rent”
- Criminal penalties for violations

Audio & Songs broadcast with this week’s Community News:

"Moose Picks ... Hello this is Rob Mulford, the Asymmetric Moose, with picks for the week of November 1, 2020:
  [final chorus of Solomon Burke’s None Of Us Are Free.]

In the spirit of Solomon Burke’s powerful and timely message, I would like to share a recent cry for freedom issued by the Ned Norris Jr. Chairman of the Tohono O’odham Nation, as published on High Country News’s (a magazine that I highly recommend) Oct. 30’s online version. Chairman Norris’s message is timely, of historical significance, relative to Alaska, as well as a clarion call to all of who consider themselves allies in the global struggle for human rights.

Stop the destruction of Tohono O’odham lands

Where there should be outrage, the Tohono O’odham Nation has only found silence.

Our sacred sites and burial grounds — which hold the deepest significance to our people — have been run over and blown up with a seemingly proud indifference by federal contractors as they rush to build President Donald Trump’s border wall.

As these cultural sites have been desecrated, federal officials have hidden behind false motivations and political games. But we are not fooled, and we are not without a voice.

While the President’s border wall is appallingly shortsighted — a political stunt that has relied on the illegal use of federally authorized dollars — it is not the first attempt to divide our people and change the narrative of our history.

The O’odham have lived in Arizona and northern Mexico since time immemorial. We experienced the impact of a border through our lands in 1854 — a border that was drawn without regard for our history, our original territory boundaries or our sovereign rights. More than 2,000 of the Nation’s enrolled tribal citizens continue to live in Mexico today.

As a result, for the past 160 years, the Tohono O’odham have been on the front lines of border issues, often bearing the brunt of failed federal border policies. In the 1990s, federal policy designed to move undocumented migrants from ports of entry pushed people onto the Nation’s lands, greatly increasing border traffic and causing environmental and cultural harm.

Today, President Trump’s border wall upholds another historic injustice against the O’odham. It threatens to further erase our history, our traditions and our culture.

Quitobaquito Springs and Monument Hill are sites sacred to the Tohono O’odham. Both include burial grounds, and both are located in what is now Organ Pipe National Monument. They sit close to the border and are within our ancestral territory. The National Park Service—the federal government’s own agency—recognizes that there are burial sites located in these areas. Yet U.S. Customs and Border Protection contractors have dismissed these facts and plowed ahead with bulldozing and blasting large portions of this land.

This has led to the ruin of an O’odham burial site and a location historically used for religious ceremonies and the final resting place for many of our tribal ancestors. The administration commenced this destruction with no advance consultation, no notice of the destruction after the fact and no effort to mitigate or avoid irreparable damage to the sacred sites.

The Trump administration’s reckless disregard for our religious and constitutional rights is embodied in the dynamite and bulldozers now rumbling through our original homelands. Many of our tribal citizens feel they have no choice but to protest these destructive activities. They have been met with tear gas and rubber bullets from law enforcement.

All of this — the desecrations, erasure and assaults on our people — are the costs we pay for this administration’s campaign prop.

We fully recognize the need for border security. The Tohono O’odham Nation’s Reservation includes 62 miles of international border with Mexico. We spend an average of $3 million of our own money each year on border security and enforcement. Funding border security is a federal responsibility, but the federal government has never reimbursed us. Our police department spends more than a third of its time on border-related issues.

But President Trump’s wall will not stop undocumented immigrants who will climb over it or smugglers who dig beneath it. It will, however, harm our desert environment, destroy our cultural resources and divide our people.

The O’odham have always been compassionate and welcoming. We have a long history of helping travelers passing through our lands. These values are part of who we are. These values are so engrained in our worldview that it is reflected in our language, which has no word for “wall.”

Instead, I share amicudalig, our word for wisdom. It means knowing right from wrong, good from bad. Let us together focus the discussion of border security on amicudalig. Acting with wisdom. Acting for the good of people and for the good of our land.
I call on Congress to act with wisdom and abolish the dictatorial statutory waiver authority that has single-handedly allowed the Administration to avoid implementation of scores of federal statutes to destroy our sacred and traditional lands. Legislate on behalf of what is right, not what is wrong, and pass comprehensive immigration reform. There are common sense solutions to border issues. None of them involve a wall.

Powerful parallels can be drawn between Chairman Norris’s message concerning the struggle of the Tohono O’odham Nation and current developments in Alaska. Those of us who consider ourselves to be allies in freedom’s struggle should take note. No matter the outcome of the November 3, election, we have our work cut out for us.

Although the next tune was not specifically written for the aforementioned, I think it is suggestive of the right solution. Let’s ready those grappling hooks.

Susan Grace sings Breaking Down the Walls.

November 3rd has meaning for me that runs far far deeper than the political machinations of the upcoming election. It is the birthday of my beloved daughter, Valerie. Although she shuffled off this mortal coil some 23 years ago, I still carry her close to my heart. The following tune is from one of her favorite musicians. Next, Boy George and Culture Club sing, Do You Really Want To Hurt Me [ISRC GBAAA8200005] …. Happy birthday Valerie!

Possibly classifiable as being on the lighter side, the next tune is dedicated to the newly confirmed Justice of the US Supreme Court, the New Riders of the Purple Sage sing Crooked Judge; what the heck, with perseverence and perspicacity, “Even this too shall pass a way.”

Wage Peace.”
